On September 26, the Network of Asian American Organizations (NAAO) and the Austin Asian American Chamber of Commerce Education (AAACCE) are co-hosting the Greater Austin Community Health Fair. The event is free to the general public and will take place from 9:00 am - 1:00 pm at the Crockett Center - 10601 North Lamar Blvd Austin, Texas 78753. Sponsors for this event include Special Design Healthcare, Seton Family Hospitals, and Gilead. Participants will receive free screenings - including cholesterol and diabetes screening (Requires 12 hours fasting), consultations, and giveaways!

The purpose of this health fair is to provide early detection of health problems and to increase health awareness of residences of the Austin area through screenings and education. Health Fair collaborates with a variety of local and statewide organizations in the planning and coordinating this fun and educational event. The health fair programs and services will meet the needs of the many diverse groups within the Austin community and surrounding areas.

Health Fair will offer participants health education and medical screenings, we hope to increase participants' health awareness, promote a healthy lifestyle, and promote better-informed consumers in the health care system concerning the following areas:
